RE: the Vivian project, Mb

I happen to live near Vivian, Mb and have been uneasy since learning about the possibility of such a mine existing so close to my home.

I am not willing to risk destroying the quality of the ground water for a large portion of southern Manitoba where many farms and agricultural lands lay, including thousands of people and hundreds of towns. With that said, I hope for more testing to be done on the effects of large scale Sio silica mining as proposed in the Vivian project before implementing it at this large of scale near so many communities.

Climate change is already altering our environments beyond our control, but I feel as though there is something to be done in this instance before irrevocably altering the land for worse. In my future as well as future generations will not have access to clean earth, water or air at the rate that large corporations are polluting the world, this is not the future I want to see.

From a concerned citizen's perspective, I hope some change may come of this,
